

ABSTRACT CLASS

People with visual and reading impairments were the early adopters of TTS. It makes sense: TTS eases the internet experience for the 1 out of 5 people who have dyslexia, low literacy readers and others with learning disabilities by removing the stress of reading and presenting information in an optimal format. We're progressing toward a more accessible Internet of the future. Already, many forward-minded content owners and publishers offer TTS solutions to make the web a place for all.
