

Abstract class

In order to keep up with the evolving technology and to further establish itself in the fast food industry, Pizza store has launched its online ordering service as an alternative for customer's to place their orders. It discusses on the significance of internet security, online sales promotions, and website interactiveness, internet accessibility and usage and customers attitude in attracting the consumers to use the online ordering service. The findings show that none of the variables has a strong influence on the customers desire to use the online ordering service. This is very useful for the people to encourage the customers to actually feel the need to use the service.
