«Rene Descartes was born on March 31, 1596, in France. His father was a member of the nobility. He lost his mother a year after his birth. He was raised by his maternal grandmother and by a nurse to whom he was devoted. In 1606, he entered a Jesuit College, that was established for the education of the young nobility and completed in 1614 the eight-year course of studies. His studies left him with a feeling of dissatisfaction at the extent of his own ignorance. But he left behind a mark of extreme brilliance. He spent the period from 1618 to 1625, divided between participation in many campaigns of the Thirty Years War in DBlich. He never married. He was doing military service without salary. Descartes spent most of his time in the study of mathematics. By the age of 22, he began to develop his analytical geometry under the title 'La Geometrie' by which the mathematicians still affectionately refer to it.

commented to be 'the greatest single step ever made in the progress of exact sciences'. He started, in 1619, work on his magnum opus Discourse on the method of Rightly Conducting the Reason, which stamped him immediately as one of the great thinkers of his age. He postulated his notion of the unity of all science which was a revolutionary concept which contradicted the notion of Aristotle.

The book contained three minor appendices on the behaviour of lenses, meteors and geometry. A 106 page foot note outlined analytical geometry, which he did it is an endless wavy line, the exact graphic equivalent of the pulsating sub and flow of electric current in a power cable, which has practical application in electrical engineering.

Descartes showed, for instance, that all quadratic equations, when graphed as connected points,
